7	Brief Report:

A Successful and Meaningful Journey

the educational trip to Rumso, undertaken collectively by the students and teachers of the three colleges, was not merely a trip or an excursion, rather, it was a beautiful opportunity to learn, observe, understand, and share experiences. Undoubtedly, this educational journey opened before all of us many aspects of village life—its culture, architecture, way of living, traditions, and local life—that cannot be fully understood merely by reading about them in books.

Most importantly, this journey became a meaningful link in the process of preliminary research and experiential learning. The conversations with the local people, the experiences shared with people from different regions, and the information gathered—was systematically documented and archived by the students.

The students returned with some new experience, question, thought and learning. These experiences in turn became the foundation of their collective understanding and research.

The active participation of students and teachers of Government College Kullu, Government College Haripur, and Government College Panarsa made this trip a success.

This educational trip was not merely a means of reaching a destination, but a journey towards understanding knowledge, culture, research, and human experiences.

This experience helped the students develop a new perspectives in life and cultivated the ability to look at things from different angles.
